

"A Short History of Anti-Asian Violence in the US, and Why It Matters Today"

Lecture/Workshop by
Dr. Pranav Jani
(Director of Asian American Studies at
The Ohio State University)

Friday, September 9
11.30-12.30
on Zoom

<https://lsu.zoom.us/j/93452157834>
Meeting ID: 934 5215 7834

In this lecture and workshop, Dr. Pranav Jani will cover the history of anti-Asian violence in the US, with an emphasis on transnational contexts and diversity within Asian groups, and attention to Asian racialization in relation to Black, Indigenous, and Latinx peoples. The question-and-answer session will also include a joint conversation on achievements, obstacles, and debates when organizing A/AAPI faculty and students and our links to BIPOC communities on and off campus. Dr. Jani is Director of Asian American Studies at Ohio State, a scholar in postcolonial studies, president of AAUP-OSU, and a longtime social justice organizer. Connect at jani.4@osu.edu

The event is free and open to everyone in the LSU community.

Sponsored by

Asian Studies,
the English Department, and the Asian/Asian American Pacific Islander Faculty and Staff Caucus

A/AAPI

Asian/Asian American Pacific Islander
Faculty & Staff Caucus